ing clearly that the market had been only under the influence of a temporary panic.

But the failure of Messrs. Jackson,

Sherman & Co., may have more important effects upon individual investors than upon the market as a whole. Their liquidations are largely abroad, resulting from their extensive foreign business as bankers.

There is no reason to expect any permanent injury to business generally by the suspension or to apprehend that anything like a panic is to follow as on the occasion of the noted failure of Jay Cooke & Co.

for the latter represented a certain system of railroad operations which has passed away, and the principals who were its most active representatives are retired from the field. The general trade of the country was never in a more healthy condition.

The facilities of business men are comparatively small and well provided for in case of an emergency, their action having been very conservative during the past two years, which fact gives assurance of their present strong position. The prospects of an improved trade for the coming autumn have become more cheering of late, while private advice from the West and South in regard to the crops are decidedly encouraging, and no individual disaster such as has afflicted the market of late, is to be expected. The movement in trade in the near future.

Colby University has paid a very graceful and merited compliment to one of the most distinguished public men in the country, in conferring the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon Hon. Geo. C. Blaine, of Augusta. The honoree is now in Italy, in which the honors of a college have been more appropriately or worthily bestowed, than in this recognition of the abilities and accomplishments which have won for the late Speaker of the National House of Representatives a name second to none of the brilliant statesmen who have occupied that exalted and responsible position. Aside from, or rather contributing to, his excellence as a parliamentary debater, Mr. Blaine has four notable family characteristics, by which, the development of the individual:

the underlying principles, the past legislation and policies and the present laws of our Government. With a mind quick to grasp the deeper life, he has devoted a portion of his time, even in the most arduous duties, to a wide range of literary culture, and has the rare faculty of retaining and holding at his instant command whatever has once been acquired. Colby University has honored itself by bestowing this compliment upon an ornament of our whose national reputation has reached honors upon the State.

DELEGATES ELECTED. A report filed by the chairman and secretary of the Oldtown Republican caucus, held at the residence of the late John J. "Pop" Jones, on Monday, the 10th inst., has been received by the County and District Conventions. It also states that only one member opposed the instructions in favor of W. H. Chesley for Senator. The delegates chosen were as follows:

Republican, and is up to the present impression in the country, a thorough knowledge of the Kentucky Republican men.

The New Haven Journal and Courier

(Hartford, Conn.) writes in its editorial column for the 10th inst. that the Republican party to defeat still and soon a little less. It says:

"The Kentucky Republican platform of the Democrats, expressing, as it doubtless does, the opinions of a large majority of the Western Democrats, is apparently the back upon which the party is divided founder in the campaign of the next year.

Certainly it is that never have the two branches of the Democracy been known to fight each other so vigorously as they do at the present time; and while this inter-valued conflict continues the Republicans cannot rest on their laurels and watch the combustion."

Why don't the St. John papers pitch into

Mr. Blaine?

A SENSIBLE GRANDMOTHER. Those who knew Mrs. Sartoris as a girl, a belle and a wife, will admire her even more as a mother, and her friends are crowding up on her, congratulating her upon the attention of the purest and the greatest womanly ambition. Esteem and pleasure and congratulation have been every form, and the proud young mother is bewildered with the honors and presents. All of which she has been wondering why the State has not allowed to be "honored" in the State House, so as to do it in the life's journey with the greatest possible credit, and a great deal of indignation is expressed by individuals in the State imposed upon the younger. But Grandmother Grant has answered all this gossip with the remark: "I do not mind being heavily for Nellie here, where the air is fresh and the breeze cool; and we won't go to the State House to be congratulated at Washington for the mere trifling of having a grandson born in the House."—Letter to Children's Journal.
